

I writing in response to the possibility that Low Power FM stations may be given priority over FM translator service. I listen to KLOVE a national and regional broadcaster. KOVE is able to serve the local community by providing information about events in our area when other listeners submit information to them. There are other stations in the areas that provide the same format of music but KLOVE is operated on donations and is commercial free. THis provides them an opportunity to supply more music and entertainment to the community. It appears that KLOVE relies on each regional area to sponsor the radio station in the area. If this is the case then KLOVE is must be an important part of the community if enough people are willing to pledge money each month to keep the radio station going.
